Piscatory Card.
The subscriber tenders his profound acknowledgments to the appreciative citizens of Bangor, for the generous patronage they have extended to him for more than the quarter of a century past during which he has been engaged in piscatorial labors; and he takes this momentous occasion to express his unhesitating belief, that they intend to continue that bountiful patronage for more than a quarter of a century longer, at the expiration of which he will probably retire with his well earned laurels unless his mind shall undergo a revolution, of which he now perceives no prospect, and he takes this opportunity to further express his belief, that, if there is anything he knows, it is FISH!
In view of all this, the Subscriber—who has been brevetted Piscator Major since his last communication—has the honor to announce that he will continue the domestic importation of ichthyological documents, and that he has made extensive arrangements for their importation from foreign parts.
The domestic ports upon which he will levy contributions, are Boston, Gloucester, Cape Cod, Hull, Portland, Newcastle, Moosehead Lake, Mt. Desert, Wassataquoik, Abooljacarnegus, Baskahegan, [where the giants congregate in gregarian multitudes], Pemaquid, Muscongus, and other places. The foreign parts are St. John, Petitcodiac, Shediac, Magaguadavic, McAdam Junction, Miramichi, Pombomcoup, Thibidekuvile, and other places whose names are too difficult to enunciate and enumerate.
The esculents with which he designs to regale the people of ichthyological and amphibious tastes and palates, are what, in ordinary language, are denominated Salmon, Shad, Codfish,—fresh and salt—Bass, Halibut, Alewives,—fresh and smoked—Whales, Sharks, Rhinoceroses, Bloaters, Skates, Bluefish, Suckers, Sculpins, Smelts, Catfish, Trout, Eels, Frogs, Perch, Pike, Dolphins, Flying-fish, Sword-fish, &c. Of the crustacean, Lobsters, Oysters, Clams, Muscles, Oyster-plants, Crabs, Tortoise, Mock-Turtle, and all the other univalves, bivalves and trivalves, that can be obtained from the Bay of Fundy, the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and elsewhere. And ever ambitious to please, he will if desired by any adequate customer, extend his enterprises into the regions of the Plesiosaurus and Ichthyosaurus, and to the Grand Banks, Newfoundland and Labrador, every where to the extent of his ability during the coming season. He expects Prof. Agassiz to bring him several new kinds of Mollusca, when he returns from his exploring expedition, or at least, photographs of them! To conclude, my friends,

Upon my heart and diaphragm,
Your persons and your faces
Are deeply graven, and I am
Enchanted with their traces.
That you will ever keep them there
I make my intercession;
To give you FISH shall be my care,
For STAMPS that make impression!

All orders promptly and enthusiastically attended to.

RAILROAD
IS A FINISHED LINE
Running through one of the richest portions of Illinois, and connecting Chicago by the shortest route with the celebrated Block Coal fields of Indiana, and by way of Evansville and Nashville with the entire South. Its mortgage debt is $2,500,000, or about $18,500 to the mile. Although the road is but just opened, it is already earning, after all operating expenses are paid,
More than the Entire Interest on all its bonds. While railroad bonds may be plenty, those upon finished and paying lines and for so small a sum to the mile, are seldom in the market.
We do not hesitate to recommend these Bonds as unusually safe. They are attended with none of the uncertainties of projected enterprises, and the prompt payment of the interest, and the final payment of the principal, are as certain as any future financial event.
The Bonds are for $1,000 each, have forty years to run, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable on the first of April and October, both principal and interest being payable in gold in New York.
We are selling them daily to the most careful investors.

Health Notice.
To the Citizens of Bangor.
The State has provided that certain measures shall be pursued in order to insure the health of the inhabitants. Among these measures are the removing of filth, unclean and noisome substances, and all things injurious to health, from the premises of citizens. Permit me to suggest to you,
1st—To examine your cellars, particularly, their condition in regard to ventilation, dampness, decaying vegetables, and all filthy substances.
2d—See if there is any offensive smell from your sinks, or if, your drains are clogged or uncovered.
3d—Examine your privies and vaults. If they are full, running over, or filthy, or smell badly, have them emptied.
4th—See if there are decaying substances or filth of any kind about your premises.
5th—See if there is any public nuisance in your neighborhood, such as open sewers, drains, cesspools, stagnant water, offensive stables, hog sties, &c.
6th—See if any drain, cesspool, privy, stable, or hog sty, is so near to your well as to soak or drain into it. By observing and carrying out the above suggestions you will confer a favor on the public, and a blessing on yourself.
HENRY GALE,
Health Officer.

The above cut represents
DUNNING'S
PATENT IMPROVED
ICE PRESERVER
This Preserver is made of felt, flannel, and other materials which are non-conductors of heat, and as to its durability, it will last during one's natural life with ordinary care.
There is not a question but what it will save from one-half to two-thirds the quantity of ice used in Hotels, Boarding-houses, and Hospitals, to say nothing about the great amount of travel saved by servants. One pitcher of ice each day for a boarder's room in the heat of summer is all that would be required if covered with this Preserver.
As a cover for a pitcher of cold water to preserve it in that state, and protect it from the dust and impurities in the atmosphere which water always takes up, it is worth double the money asked for them. Where water is obtained from cold springs in cases of sickness, with no ice, and it is desirable to keep it cool, this Preserver is invaluable.
Think of the value of it to a sick person longing for a drink of cold water during the hours of a hot summer night. The difference between an invalid reaching out of bed and taking a swallow of pure ice or cold water, or one from a pitcher of tepid water that has been taking up the poison in the atmosphere of a sick room for eight or ten hours, is not to be measured by dollars and cents by any one who values health or comfort.
Think of the luxury and comfort it would afford to thousands of factory girls in the heat of summer, where four girls working together could furnish themselves with one for less than one dollar each, and by placing it over a two quart pitcher of ice in the morning they would find it sufficient for the whole day.
If it were only to keep a pitcher of cold water free from the dust common to all cotton, woolen, and other factories, the price would be no object, especially if the health of the operatives was taken into account.
The value of this Patent Ice Preserver in the Southern States must be apparent to every one, where ice is frequently sold for six or eight cents per pound, as a person can take a common earthen two quart pitcher and put into it four or five pounds of ice, and place it under one of these Preservers and it will be from twenty-four to thirty hours before it all melts, with the thermometer from seventy-five to eighty-five above zero.
For the sake of introducing them extensively I have put the price as low as I can and leave a fair business profit.
It is all important that in placing the Ice Preserver over the pitcher that the bottom should rest fair on the table to exclude the air. They will be got up to order highly ornamented or in any way parties may desire.
The Flannel lining undergoes a chemical preparation which prevents it from being injured by the moisture.
Orders will be received for the Improved Patent Ice Preserver by the dozen, or for State, County or Town rights, by Giving friends a "send off" is now one of the Sunday excitements and scenes in the New York bay. A steam-tug, brass cannon, profusion of bunting, band of music and innumerable bottles of wine are necessary ingredients and paraphernalia.

They tell of a Virginia dog which, during the war, used to bark with apparent delight whenever he heard "Dixie" played, and now, though old, when he chances to hear the air, responds in accents of mingled pity and sorrow, after a manner peculiar to his race.

A hunter in Northern New York has killed during the past winter, 60 deer and 30 mink, beside two or three each of bears and panthers. He has also tapped 3500 maple trees, making about five tons of sugar. He has made by hunting and trapping alone over $300 a month.

Franz Abt, the composer, will arrive in New York on Thursday or Friday. The Liederkranz Society, of which he is an honorary member, will give a concert for his benefit on May 18th, the Arion Society will honor him by a banquet, and the Sangerbund by a torchlight procession and a serenade.

The Montreal Herald considers that the question why the Joint High Commission was appointed "is a problem in the ways of Providence quite as wonderful as the one commemorated by the village stone cutter in the case of the prematurely deceased infant."

At the Metropolitan church, in Washington Sunday, Dr. Newman baptized a Japanese student named Cadama, who assumed the Christian name of John Phillips, and Dr. Eddy, pastor of the church, took the convert in full membership, he having served the required probation of six months.

In a recent interview with some travelling Americans, the Pope is reported to have said that if he should ever leave Rome, he would be glad to take up his residence in New York because no city in the world contains more earnest Catholics, or those more devoted to the highest and best interests of the church.

The Russian government lately negotiated a railroad loan in London to the extent of seventeen million pounds sterling, and on the strength of this loan orders were placed with the English mills for nearly 200,000 tons of rails. It is this great demand from Russia which has stimulated the advance in railroad iron in England of late.

It is reported that the New York Standard will be discontinued May 1, John Russell Young, its nominal editor and proprietor, is going abroad as correspondent for the Herald. The Standard has sunk in two years fully $150,000, and General Sherman, ex-Collector Murphy, Henry Clews and other stockholders refuse to venture any more money in the enterprise.—[Ex.

THE LOSS OF BARQUE ANDAMAN AND ALL HANDS.—The Edinburgh Scotsman of 14th inst., gives the following particulars of the loss of the above vessel, which belonged at Bath, Me.:—

"The barque Kaffirland, Capt. Inglis, which arrived at Greenock, on Wednesday night, from Pensacola, brings intelligence of the loss of the barque Andaman, of Bath, United States, with all hands. The Kaffirland signalled the Andaman on the 13th of March, 285 miles north of the Bermudas in the North Atlantic, and 450 miles S. E. from New York. The Kaffirland bore down upon the vessel, ascertained her name, and found she was sinking. A strong northwesterly gale made it impossible to launch a boat to save the crew of the disabled vessel.—They numbered six men and a boy, and were observed clinging to the windward bulwarks of the Andaman which was heavily listed. A raft had been constructed, and lying alongside the vessel, which was dismasted. Captain Inglis signalled to the crew that he would endeavor to take them off by bearing round to the leeward; but the disabled vessel suddenly settled down, taking all hands with her. The Kaffirland cruised about the scene of the disaster for some time, but no trace of any of the unfortunate crew was observed."

THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE KU-KLUX ACT.—The report of U. S. Attorney-General Williams, in response to a resolution of the House, gives the details of the measures for the enforcement of the Ku-Klux act in the Carolinas, and says that all lawless combinations were broken up in Kentucky by the force of public sentiment and prompt prosecutions. Still he cannot say there is as much protection for life and property as could be desired. Crime is fearfully increasing in the Indian country, where every effort is being made to break up illegal traffic in spirituous liquors and punish violation of laws. Life and property are as secure in Arkansas as in the average of States, as it is also in the thickly settled portions of Texas, but upon the frontiers of the latter the people suffer indescribable woes from robberies and murders.—With, however, an influx of immigration from Europe and from the States it cannot be long before all lawlessness and violence growing out of political differences, radical antagonisms and social distinctions with be a thing of the past.

A MAY-DAY RETROSPECT.

Asking our readers to bear witness that egotism has never been a characteristic of this journal and that they have seldom been troubled with references of a personal nature, we are sure they will pardon us if we indulge in a glance backward towards an event in the history of the paper, of which to-day is the anniversary. It is eighteen years ago to-day, since the present Proprietor, in company with his esteemed partner, the late William H. Wheeler, assumed the ownership and management of THE WHIG AND COURIER, issuing the first number in the name of the new conductors on the first day of May 1854. Beginning at once to enlarge the amount of reading matter, and especially in telegraphic news, the two partners—one of whom performed all the editorial work, while the other transacted all the office business and kept the books—regularly worked at the case every night, setting-up the reports received by telegraph. How consistently the progressive policy then inaugurated has been carried out, is best shown by the fact that with constant additions and improvements, the paper now furnishes daily almost four times the amount of reading matter with which the new firm began, the preparation of which requires the constant and exclusive labors of three persons in the editorial department, besides our special reporters, while the working force of the establishment has increased to more than three times the number of employes required to produce the daily of 1854.

In noting with a pardonable feeling of gratification the rapid growth and improvement of our paper in all its various appointments, we are not unmindful of the generous public favor and appreciation of enterprise which has sustained our efforts, and a comparison of our present issue with that of the period to which we have referred, will show, we think, that additions and improvements have fully kept pace with the increase of our patronage, and in various instances exceeded what was warranted by circumstances. In this connection we may recall the fact that when, at the outbreak of the rebellion, the price of paper advanced from ten to thirty cents per pound, the WHIG was kept up to its full size and standard at a heavy expense, the publishers believing that the community would appreciate and eventually reward their efforts to maintain a newspaper commensurate with the size and importance of our city and section, and with ample facilities for obtaining and imparting intelligence of the remarkable events of that exciting period of history. Although this course absorbed all the profits of publication from 1861 to 1864, we now have the satisfaction of knowing that no backward step has been taken, while it is our intention to follow out the policy of constant improvements, by which existing departments have been enlarged and rendered more attractive and new and important features added. Among these improvements we may call attention to the Local Department, which is now made a specialty and intended to furnish the most reliable record of current local affairs; and to the addition of an extensive Marine Journal, prepared with special reference to the commercial interests of this section, and embracing all the latest intelligence of the movements and whereabouts of Eastern vessels. Other features of extension and improvement will suggest themselves to all who have followed the onward course of the paper, and we trust that many of our oldest readers will live to see the journal which has so long retained their confidence and support expanding into still larger proportions and attaining a still higher standard of usefulness and excellence.

But the character established by a public journal and which pervades and directs its course from year to year, is a more important element of substantial success and influence than its enterprise and liberality; and looking back over the past eighteen years of the career of this paper, it is something worth to feel that its high character has been maintained throughout, and that its files can be appealed to with a consciousness that they bear record of consistent advocacy of what we believed to be the right, with a constant and earnest solicitude that our influence should be always exerted on behalf of justice, good morals and the public welfare. It has been our aim to make this paper a welcome guest at the family fireside; to exclude, so far as possible by the strictest supervision, anything which even the children may not read; and by refusing objectionable advertising, by rejecting all articles of a personal or questionable character, by avoiding abusive language towards opponents and by always holding our columns strictly within our own control, to present our patrons with a journal worthy of the community which it represents, and devoted to that course which in our best judgment shall seem for the public good. The principles on which we have stood in the past, on which we stand as firmly in the present and which it will be our ambition to maintain in the future, are tersely and frankly stated in the following language of our Prospectus:—

"The paper will continue to support, politically, the fundamental principles of the Republican Party; advocating the fullest recognition of all the rights of our fellow-men, the equal protection and privilege before the laws of every citizen, without regard to locality, race, color or condition; the diffusion of Intelligence, the encouragement of Temperance, and the repression of all elements of disorder and crime. Questions of public policy will be treated with candor, and only such courses sustained as shall seem calculated to result in benefit to the People. While firmly adhering to the principles of our faith, and prompt in our support of those principles, partizan rancor will be avoided, and the views which we hold presented in a manner to convince rather than exasperate, believing that a fearless advocacy of the right, as we see it, can be made more powerful when tempered with dignity and forbearance."

In maintaining the character of the paper according to the standards which we have established, it has been inevitable that we should sometimes be compelled to differ with friends for whom we entertain the highest respect. The necessity that a public journal should have a policy of its own and the impossibility of reconciling all differences of opinion among its constituents on the thousand and one topics which it is called upon to consider, has frequently constrained us to disoblige one and incur the displeasure of another, in the conscientious discharge of what we conceived our duty. No task is more delicate or onerous than that of determining just where duty to the public begins and ends; just what to admit and what to refuse; and while we may have sometimes erred unintentionally, it has been our earnest purpose to decide all questions with reference to the public good and not from personal considerations. It would require but a brief experience of the responsibilities and perplexities of conducting a newspaper, to convince the most captious that the unavoidable necessity of disobliging friends is the cause of more keen regret to us than it can possibly be to them.

In looking back at our record of eighteen years, we find the most satisfactory guarantee of the popular support that is commanded by an honorable and straight-forward course; and in that record our patrons may find the safest assurance of the future policy of the paper. Having earned the confidence of the public as an outspoken, consistent and reliable journal, and the respect of both political friends and opponents, our highest aspiration will be to advocate the right and to maintain the reputation we have established. The advantage to our city in having an exponent of its interests which is steadfast and trustworthy is obvious to all.—The people can trust it and depend upon it, as they could not do were it constantly wavering in its course and contradicting its record. The newspaper reflects the character of the people, and our exchanges from all parts of the country furnish gratifying evidence that the standing and influence of our community has not suffered on account of its representative journal.

We are proud that the WHIG AND COURIER has so identified itself with the interests and enterprises of Bangor and this section of the State; and we shall continue a fearless champion of those interests and a zealous advocate of every commendable enterprise.—While gratified with our past progress, we are by no means satisfied to remain stationary, but shall add improvements as fast as the public command them by increased support. The great advance in the expenses of our establishment has prevented lowering our price without reducing the size of the paper, which we have been unwilling to do, believing that a liberal and enterprising people prefer to pay a fair price for a good paper, rather than a smaller sum for a poor one.

The Proprietor has called to his assistance an efficient editorial corps under whose care the interests of the public and the character of the paper will be zealously sustained. The general editorial management and supervision will continue in the hands of the editor who has conducted the paper for the past two years; the City Department will be looked after by the same experienced journalist who has earned such general popularity by his enterprise and ability; and the departments of State and general local intelligence will be under the care of a competent assistant editor who will devote all his attention to the gathering and compilation of news. In addition we employ a large corps of reporters, have added to our facilities in various ways, and looking behind us at the changes of the past eighteen years and then before us to the years that are to come, we are determined to outstrip all past progress, that Bangor shall have a newspaper of which it need not be ashamed, and that with a continued increase of patronage, our journal shall be kept fully up to the standard of that energy and enterprise which have ever been the acknowledged characteristics of our city.

THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION. Dispatches from Cincinnati announce that a plan has been arranged allowing each State a certain number of votes, and in case of incomplete delegations those present cast the full vote. It is reported that the convention will be called to order by Col. Grosvenor of Missouri and that Ex-Governor Bradford of Maryland has been selected for permanent President. He was removed from office by President Lincoln; and has voted the Democratic ticket for several years past. The revenue plank is proving troublesome, but Greeley is said to be willing to compromise for votes.—The reports are full of conflicting speculations as to candidates, and it is amusing to notice that these gentlemen who were to assemble simply to consider measures of reform, are now indifferent as to the platform while they are engaged in a sharp scramble for the nominations. The Boston Globe's special says:

Calculations as to the result of the deliberations are speculative, like the affair itself.—Such an heterogenous assembly has never been gathered before. A notable feature is the comparative absence of young men and the want of enthusiasm.

Few New England men have appeared. They seem to meet with no recognition, and in all the slates those states are counted out.

Ex-Senator Doolittle, who is present, don't take much stock in the movement. He is reported thus:

Now, said he, Grant may be a weak man, as they say, but he is nobody's fool, and it will take more strength than anybody can bring to this convention to beat him. The Senator then went on to talk of the relative numerical strength of the two parties, the Liberal and the Democratic. He said the Democrats had 3,000,000 voters, solid and compact, ready to vote for any candidate properly put forth. The Liberals had only a few hundred thousand, at most, and they were principally scallawags and soreheads.

THE INDIRECT CLAIMS. Our readers will bear us witness that we have never for one moment admitted the truth of the sensational dispatches and editorial harping, in regard to the action of our Government touching the Geneva arbitration. It now appears that these reports are entirely without authority, and substantially without truth. It is easy to see that the motive of these misrepresentations is purely to produce political effect. We believe the position of the United States Government in the matter is entirely unchanged; the indirect claims were submitted for settlement; few people, if any, suppose they will be allowed; a decision is what is wanted, and is as desirable for Great Britain as for the United States.—[Boston Globe.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

The Ohio Legislature has adjourned sine die. The bill providing for a Constitutional Convention next spring was killed.

Gov. Warmouth and about sixty-four of his partizans, white and colored, left New Orleans Sunday night for Cincinnati.

Local prohibition is not popular in the New York Legislature, and the bill now before it will probably be defeated.

The Boston correspondent of the Hartford Courant says that not more than half a dozen members of the Bird club support the Cincinnati movement.

The New York World is still harping on the Adams string to the Cincinnati kite, much to the disgust of the Bourbons, who say "take any shape but that."

The Portland Press says there is not a Republican paper in Maine but what has declared in the most positive terms against the Cincinnati movement, yet among the editors and publishers there are but two or three that hold Federal offices.

All the members of the Wisconsin delegation are candidates for another term in Congress. In the first district (new) C. G. Williams of Janesville is most prominently named, and in the eighth Messrs. Barrow, Pound, McIndoe, Kingston, Miner, Alban and Stevenson are already named.

A Washington Sunday paper of Democratic proclivities, which has been advocating the nomination of Judge Davis by the Cincinnati meeting, seems to have abandoned hope in that direction, and urges the claim of Governor Walker of Virginia. Another paper urges the nomination of Chief Justice Chase and Robert C. Winthrop as the strongest ticket that could be put in the field.

The Tribune says that ... Sickles, now on his way to ... [illegible] that legation. It is understood that he has already asked to be recalled, and only goes to Madrid for the summer, to arrange some pending diplomatic business, and to bring back his mother and daughter, who have remained there during his recent visit to this country.

The impression that Governor Hoffman will veto the charter is deepening in New York. At Albany, where the rumors fly thickest, it is currently reported and believed that the governor will exercise his veto power in relation to the bill early this week. He has certainly taken time to consider the matter, and the people now wait anxiously for his decision, which is likely to be final as to the fate of the charter.

The Boston Traveller compares Sumner's position with that of Van Buren in 1848, and says:—"The New York ex-President could keep the vote of his State from the Democrats, and hand it over to the Whigs,—and with it give them victory. The Massachusetts Senator can do nothing of the kind.—He cannot keep the vote of his State from the Republicans, and hand it over to the Democrats, and with it victory, the fruit of his vengeance. Massachusetts is as certain to vote for President Grant's re-election as that he will be a candidate,—an assertion that the Cincinnati Convention can accept without hesitation, as an unalterable fact. No Massachusetts man's nomination can strengthen their cause much in Massachusetts."

MAINE NEWS.

FROM BELFAST.

TEMPERANCE REFORM MEETING.

BELFAST, Me., April 30.

A large temperance meeting was held here last evening to institute a Reform Club similar to those in other Maine cities. Ex Mayor Hayford presided, and C. C. Roberts of Stockton was Secretary. J. K. Osgood of Gardiner and Dr. Brickett of Augusta made eloquent addresses, and brief remarks were made by Hon. N. Abbott, A. G. Jewett, Gen'l Nickerson, Joseph Williamson and others. A large number signed the pledge.

FIRE.

An unoccupied house belonging to Mrs. Jos. Meek, near Grove Cemetery, was burned last night. Loss about $1000.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

CRIMINALS SENTENCED.

NEW YORK, April 30. Edward Scott and James Carroll, two negro burglars, were sentenced to the State Prison yesterday, the former 20 and the latter 15 years, by Judge Moore, in Brooklyn. The same Judge sentenced Geo. Driscoll to 2 years in prison, for swindling the community in the garb of a priest.

A CONSUL COMPLAINED OF.

It is stated that the merchants of New York complain loudly of Consul Dudley's inefficiency at Liverpool, and that the Congressmen from New York will ask Secretary Fish to furnish the correspondence relative thereto for the information of the House.

"REDDY" AGAIN.

Timothy Hussy, a pugilist, shot Wm. Varley, alias "Reddy the Blacksmith," in the cheek yesterday, because the latter demanded rent. Reddy is not seriously hurt.

BIG JOB ALLEGED.

It is stated that the bill introduced into the House yesterday by Mr. Negley of Pa., in favor of paying railroads two cents a mile for transporting soldiers during the war, will, if passed, deplete the Treasury over $200,000,000.

IN THE STOKES CASE

to-day, the Judge, after debate between counsel and the objections heard from Stokes' counsel, denied the motion for arrest of judgment based on the bill of exceptions, the Court reaffirming its power to take the case from the jury on a collateral issue, and direct a verdict for the people. The stay of proceedings was vacated, and the counsel for Stokes was given till Wednesday next to put in a plea.

NO JAIL DELIVERY.

All the prisoners in the Penitentiary have been remanded for retrial by the Court of Special Sessions, as it is now with regularity constituted. This will prevent their release on habeas corpus.

REPORTED LOBBY.

It is stated that a company of ex-office holders has been formed here and in Washington, to lease the grounds occupied by the Brooklyn Navy-Yard, and a strong lobby is now in Washington urging the passage of a bill in their interests.

BOLD ROBBERY.

Early this morning three men in a wagon filled with milk cans drove to Jhon M. Stearns' Silk Factory, Nos. 213 and 221 East 42d street. One of them knocked at the office door which was opened by the porter, Michael Sherry, and struck him on the head with a club and he fell insensible. He was then bound and gagged and $5,000 worth of silks were stolen. There were no arrests.

IN GENERAL.

A meeting was held last night at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., and a committee was appointed to receive subscriptions for sufferers by the earthquake at Antioch.

The body of George Rice, a Philadelphia contractor, was found in the woods near Elizabeth, N. J. He was probably murdered.

The Oil Carpet Works at Waspeth, L. I., were burned yesterday. Loss $50,000. A fireman was killed at the fire.

Several children were injured but not seriously during a panic occasioned by a fire in the rear of a public school on 125th street today.

Col. Jerome B. Fellows has been tendered and will accept the Colonelcy of the 9th regiment, vacated by the death of Fisk.

The reported return of Conkling, the defaulting cashier of the of the Market Savings Bank is unfounded.

The Bay Flour Mills in Brooklyn were damaged to the amount of $25,000 by fire last night. Insured $1,500.

POLITICAL.

SENATOR WILSON AND THE WORKINGMEN—THE COLUMBUS TICKET REPUDIATED.

NEW YORK, April 30. It is stated that the delegation of Workingmen, after waiting on the President had an interview with Senator Wilson, at which they stated that there would soon be published an official letter from the Massachusetts Crispins and other Workingmen's Associations, repudiating the nomination of Davis and Parker, made at Columbus.

SENSIBLE ADVICE.

Senator Wilson stated to them that he considered those nominations unauthorized and the act of a few scheming politicians seeking the disruption of the present political organization. He said also that they could not seek the good of laboring men by placing on their ticket a man worth $2,000,000, who naturally represents capital rather than labor.

THE PRESIDENT.

The delegation expressed great satisfaction at the action of President Grant in enforcing the 8-hour law.

TROUBLE AT CINCINNATI.

NEW YORK, April 30. It is reported that private dispatches indicate that Judge Davis is likely to be nominated, and if so the friends of Trumbull will not support him.

FROM ALBANY.

THE CHARTER VETOED.

ALBANY, April 30. Gov. Hoffman has vetoed the New York city charter. The Assembly sustained the Governor's veto of the charter and the bill was rejected. The Governor in his veto doubts the constitutionality of the provision for cumulative voting and objects to placing the absolute control of the departments in a board of safety which is appointed by the Common Council and is subject to no other authority. Several other provisions of the bill also are objectionable, and he considers the plan as one opposed by past experience and sanctioned only by speculative opinions.

THE WEATHER.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER
WASHINGTON, May 1.—1 A. M.,

Probabilities.

Barometer will continue falling from the lower lakes to the East and Middle States.—Cloudy weather with rain will prevail over the Middle States very generally by Wednesday morning, and extend over New England during the day. Cloudy and threatening weather over the Southern States. Northwesterly winds and clearing weather throughout the Mississippi Valley and extend over the upper lakes region to the Ohio Valley.

WASHINGTON.

CINCINNATI—THE APACHES.

WASHINGTON, April 20. Several hundred people have left here for Cincinnati.

Gen. Howard reports that there are about a thousand Apache Indians at Camp Grant, Arizona, perfectly peaceable and contented with the reservation.

The Alabama Controversy!

Secretary Boutwell and the Treaty!

THE LONDON TIMES IN GOOD HUMOR!

The "World" says England is Satisfied.

BOUTWELL, FINANCES AND THE TREATY.

NEW YORK, April 30. It is stated that the Secretary of the Treasury informed the President yesterday that the success of our funded loan, as well as the financial schemes of various American corporations in Europe, depended upon their success in London, and if the Treaty of Washington was rejected by England all would be likely to fail, as there could be no compensating success in other European centres.

THE "TIMES" CONGRATULATES OUR GOVERNMENT.

London, April 30. The Times, in an editorial upon the present phase of the American claims question, congratulates the United States Government for proposing that the liability of the results shall never extend beyond direct consequences of the breaches of neutrality; thus paving the way for a satisfactory settlement of the differences now existing between England and America.

A "WORLD" SPECIAL—ENGLAND CONSIDERS THE CLAIMS WITHDRAWN.

[N. Y. World's special. I am authorized to say that the British Government considers the claim for indirect damages withdrawn.—Gladstone and Earl Granville will compliment President Grant in Parliament for yielding to their demands.

BISMARCK'S APPROVAL OF OUR CLAIMS CONTRADICTED.

Berlin. April 30. It is positively untrue that Prince Bismarck expressed his approval of the American claim for consequential damages.

FROM CINCINNATI.

THE ARRIVALS—THE ORGANIZATION.

CINCINNATI, O., April 30. The arrivals to-day are steadily increasing and from some directions have been immense. The city is full of strangers and the interest is increasing every hour.

It has been settled that Judge Stanley Matthews will be temporary chairman of the Convention. Farther than this nothing is settled in reference to other officers, though there is much speculation relative to permanent officers.

CANDIDATE PROSPECTS.

The interest relative to candidates was never so great as to-day. Great pressure is made for Judge Davis, and his friends talk confidently. A train of 17 cars came in at 11 o'clock from Paris, Decatur and other cities in Illinois, bearing delegations aggregating six hundred. It is claimed that they are largely in favor of Davis. The friends of Charles Francis Adams hardly seem confident, though there is so much chaos of opinion that it is not safe to make predictions.

THE KANSAS DELEGATION

held a meeting this morning and decided informally for Trumbull; but showed no disposition to make a fight for any candidate. Horace Greely appears to be their choice for Vice President.

ILLINOIS DIVIDED.

The delegates from Illinois are badly divided, and efforts are making towards reconciliation. The Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and other delegations held meetings this afternoon. The Tennesseeans held a meeting this morning and were addressed by Col. Collins and Col. Byrd, the latter from East Tennessee. At a meeting of friends of Davis, Palmer and Trumbull from Illinois an agreement was reached by which in the Convention Davis is to be entitled to half the delegates from Illinois and the remainder to be divided between Palmer and Trumbull.

THE ILLINOIS SPLIT.

At a general meeting of the Illinois delegation this afternoon the following committee was appointed to recommend permanent delegates to the Convention:—For Judge Davis, Hon. Leonard Swett, Wirt Dexter, A. Gridley and D. R. Fairbanks; for Governor Palmer, E. M. Haines Richard Rout, E. M. Edwards and M. B. Brown; for Trumbull, ex-Lieut. Gov. Koener, O. K. M. Hatch, Isaac Reyas and William Jaynes. The meeting was large and somewhat excited. It is claimed that some of the committee have not been closely identified with the movement.

THE NEW ENGLAND DELEGATION.

The New England delegation held a general meeting to-night, though there is not as many delegates in all the States of New England as votes to be cast from New Hampshire.

Maine has Hamlin of Portland, I. Lyford and D. T. Wright of Lewiston, Manson of Bangor, and Perkins of Ellsworth. Massachusetts a few more delegates than votes. New England it is said, will give first a complimentary vote for Sumner, then for Adams first and Trumbull, and would, it is said, be willing to take both Adams and Trumbull without regard to person or place.

Edward Atkinson is chairman of the Massachusetts delegation; David A. Wells of the Connecticut and Edward Harris of the Rhode Island delegation. In the event of Trumbull's nomination there is some talk that Henry R. Selden will be urged for the second place by at least part of the New York delegation.

The revenue plank in the platform is a yet a disturbing question, and a satisfactory conclusion had not been arrived at to a late hour to-night, at a conference held between the New York and Missouri delegates who are the most interested in this question.

MISSOURI.

THE REIGN OF TERROR CONTINUED—THE SHERIFF POWERLESS AGAINST THE MOB.

HOLLEN, Mo., April 30. Refugees from Cass county arrived last night. It is reported that the reign of terror continues in that county. The father of the murdered Cline is insane in consequence of the death of his son. The whole family was ordered to leave the farm by Sheriff Bryant, who confesses that he is powerless to protect them. The sons have fled to the bush taking the father with them, and the daughter escaped to Harrisonville on foot.

THE STATE OFFICIALS.

Adjutant Seigel and Commissioners Phillips and Cockerell held a consultation yesterday and left for Pleasant Hill. Sheriff Bryant of Cass county arrived last night.

ANOTHER REPORT—THE PEOPLE FLYING IN TERROR.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. 30. Persons from Cass county state that there is a reign of terror there. Seventeen families residing at Harrisonville and vicinity were forced to leave on pain of death.

MORE BLOOD THREATENED.

The leaders of the gang declare that they will not be satisfied until every man, directly or indirectly, connected with the issuance of the county bonds is killed.

[In conflict with above, a St. Louis dispatch says Gov. Brown on Monday received advices from the Adjutant General and Commissioners sent to Cass County, that confidence was restored, and hence no more troops would be called out. Gov. Brown expresses the determination to execute the law at all hazards and bring the murderers of Stevenson, Cline and Dutro to a speedy punishment.]

CONNECTICUT.

FIRE IN THE STATE PRISON—SAVED BY THE WATER MAINS—HEAVY DAMAGES.

HARTFORD, Ct., April 30. A fire broke out in the Rule Shop of Wyllis Thrall & Son at the State Prison in Wethersfield at 1 o'clock this morning, threatening for a time the entire prison buildings. Having connections with the water mains of this city which furnished considerable head, alone saved the premises. The officers and a few trusty convicts labored assiduously for four hours and controlled the flames. The Rule Shop was totally destroyed causing a loss to Thrall & Son of about $15,000. The prison was damaged $2,000 with no insurance. It is thought the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion of sawdust saturated with oil-drippings from the machinery.

SUICIDE.

Henry W. Strong, aged 54 years was found dead hanging to a tree in South Windsor yesterday. He has been depressed in spirits caused by the loss of his wife and had become somewhat intemperate.

MURDER TRIAL.

HARTFORD, 30. The trial of Scott and Charest, the young men charged with the murder of the Billings family in Windsor Locks in January, commenced in the Supreme Court in this city to-day. Most of the forenoon was occupied in empanelling a jury.

GOV. JEWELL

left this afternoon for New Haven where he is to be inaugurated to-morrow.

THE JAPANESE.

M. Tanaka, Commissioner of Education for Japan, visited the Deaf and Dumb Asylum and High School to-day, and he will visit the State Normal School at New Britain and Reform School at Meriden.

MASSACHUSETTS.

FATAL FOLLY.

BOSTON, April 30. Last evening James Hollihan, aged 25, drove a horse and buggy into the freight yard of the B. & A. R. R., and immediately in front of a starting train. He was removed to the hospital with both legs and an arm crushed and will die.

EXTENSIVE CONFLAGRATION.

NASHUA, N. H. April 30. A fire broke out at 3 o'clock this morning in the car house of the Worcester & Nashua Railroad Co., which building with its contents, consisting of a train of cars, snow ploughs, &c., was totally destroyed. Water was scarce and the Rolling Mill of the Nashua Iron and Steel Co., took fire from the heat and was also burned to the ground. A small portion of the machinery was saved, but the loss is very heavy; estimated at $40,000 or $50,000; said to be insured for $25,000. The loss of the Railroad Co. is not learned.

They will row in a new boat built by Elliot of Greenpoint.

OVERDUE. A poor old horse frame was too heavily loaded by his driver yesterday afternoon and fell in his struggles to get up the rise from Kenduskeag bridge to Exchange street. The used-up beast was unharnessed and set on his feet again by the bystanders, but just as he was entering into another struggle with his burden, two young ladies—daughters of Messrs. A. R. Greenough and C. D. Bryant—drove along in a rockaway belonging to the last-named gentleman. Quite a number of teams came up together at the same time, and being pressed over by them, the rockaway came in collision with the jigger attached to the "stuck" horse, and was overturned, throwing the ladies out with great violence. Both were severely bruised, and injured by the shock, but fortunately no bones were broken. The carriage was badly smashed.

FATAL ACCIDENT. A little before 11 o'clock yesterday forenoon, as the freight train which left this city on the E. & N. A. Railway at 6:40, was passing through a covered bridge about a half mile east of Lincoln, a brakeman named Joel Littlefield was knocked by the top of the bridge off a box car on which he was standing, and several cars ran over him, bruising and mangling him in a horrible manner, so that he lived only about half an hour after the accident. Mr. Littlefield was a little over thirty years of age and resided in Winn, where he leaves a wife and several small children. He was formerly foreman of a section and resided at "Sunkhaze." This is the fourth man on this train who has met with an accident since Friday last, one employe having a hand jammed, one a foot and another a shoulder.

A QUICK TRIP. Our readers will remember that on the 11th of April, Mr. H. T. Clark, General Baggage Agent of the E. & N. A. Railway, dispatched from St. John, N. B., a carpet-bag checked for San Francisco, Cal., with the request that all baggage agents on the route forward it as quickly as possible in order to test the shortest time in which the trip between the two points and return could be made. Yesterday the baggage passed through this city on its return to St. John, arriving there last evening, having been nineteen days and twelve hours on the round trip, the quickest passage ever made between these extremes of the continent. The way bill shows that it left St. John April 11th at 7.30 A. M., arrived in San Francisco April 22d, at 8.40 P. M., left on its return April 23d at 7 A. M., and arrived at St. John April 30th, at 7 P. M. On its outward trip it passed over the E. & N. A., Maine Central, Grand Trunk, Great Western, Michigan Central, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Union Pacific and Central Pacific Railroads; returning via Western, Central and Union Pacific, Chicago & North Western, Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, New York Central, Hudson River, New York & New Haven, Boston & Maine, P. S. & P., Maine Central and E. & N. A. roads. The transfer at Omaha was effected by the "Omaha Bridge Transfer Co.," at Chicago by Parmelee's Transfer, and at Boston, in spite of the assurance of the Traveller's correspondent, it was dispatched across without the least delay. Check No. 105, issued by the E. & N. A. Railway, did take the carpet-bag "across the continent" twice, and the prediction of the above-mentioned correspondent (whose sneers at Mr. Clark were in decidedly bad taste, to say the least) that "the chances were that the veritable carpet-bag would never proceed beyond the station in Boston," has come to naught. If Mr. Clark has "mistaken his calling" it has not yet been made apparent.

MANUFACTURES IN BANGOR.

FIFTH MEETING IN CITY HALL IN AID OF THE INTRODUCTION OF MANUFACTURES—SPEECHES BY MESSRS. McCRILLIS, WOODS, J. W. EMERY AND MARCELLUS EMERY.

The fifth meeting in aid of the introduction of manufactures into our city was held in the City Hall last evening, and as on previous occasions, the hall was filled to its utmost capacity.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Mayor Wheelwright called the meeting to order. J. C. White, Esq., was chosen Secretary, and Mr. Emery, from the committee appointed at the last meeting to engage speakers for this, reported that he had secured the services of Hons. Wm. H. McCrillis and Noah Woods, J. W. Emery and F. A. Wilson, Esqs.

Mr. McCrillis was first called upon, and took the stand amid applause. He said he had no doubt there were were many others present who knew far more about manufactures than himself, but he was greatly interested in the subject. We hear how manufactures are benefitting many places elsewhere in our own and other states, and the question comes up, why we, with the greatest and best water power in New England, are not manufacturing. To improve our water power requires a great deal of capital, experience and skill, of which we are not now possessed. But Lowell, Lawrence, Manchester, Saco, Biddeford and Lewiston were situated as we are, in that respect. Foreign capital came in and built them up, and our city can be built up in the same manner. It is our duty to use every means to attract foreign capital here; it can be done, and in twenty-five years every mill site between Treat's Falls and Oldtown will be occupied and improved. This matter has been ably discussed, but the speaker said he was not aware that any particular mode had been advocated. He had a plan of his own, though he should not press it against the wishes of the majority; it was that a sum should at once be raised sufficient to erect and set in operation a cotton factory—this year if possible. This, he said, would be the best means of making known our resources to the public and especially the capitalists abroad.

Hon. Noah Woods was next called out, and was loudly applauded. He said the "staple" of Bangor had heretofore been lumber, but the business had been carried on in a manner which did not turn the money invested in it to the best account. We ought, he said, to regard lumber as our staple now, but in a higher sense than formerly, when only pine was regarded as lumber. Even white birch and poplar, so long regarded as worthless, is valuable now, and large quantities are daily sent through this city to be manufactured elsewhere. This should not be; the last stroke of work should be done here or at mills on the river. We have what is probably the best water power in New England, but let us not be idle while waiting for it to be improved; let us begin smaller manufactures for which we have capital and skill enough at home, and we shall succeed like Laconia and many other cities and towns in New England, which have been built up by the energies and capital of their own citizens. We should fix upon some definite project, study it up, find what is needed; then go ahead with a will and plenty of capital will be forthcoming.

J. W. Emery, Esq., gave a succinct account of how Manchester, N. H., was built up by manufactures. A company of Boston capitalists was formed, who pitched upon Sandy Plain, near Manchester, as a site for their operations. They sent an engineer to examine the water power, procured titles to the land, paid in enough to construct a dam and canal, built a cotton mill, and commenced manufacturing. This drew the attention of other manufacturers, to whom the company sold sites for factories and leased them power until the whole capacity of the Merrimac at that place was utilized. The shares of the company were at first $1,000; now they are quoted at $1400. This plan requires a large amount of capital and faith at first, but as may be seen, was successful. Lowell was built up in the same way, but in Saco, Biddeford and Lawrence the water power company was not so successful. Between here and Oldtown the Penobscot falls 90 feet, and there is room and power enough for half-a-dozen towns like Lowell or Manchester.—What is needed is a pioneer company.

Mr. Emery then proceeded to give some practical advice in the matter. Shun, he said, the man who is anxious to start a manufactory because he wants to sell some land; if he is a member of your company, it will be a failure. Get an organization of strong, influential and independent men, let an engineer of acknowledged ability select the site, obtain bonds for deeds of the surrounding property, and above all, do not neglect to secure the right to dam the lakes at the head-waters, to hold back water for the dry season. Agriculture, manufactures and commerce all depend upon each other; firmly establish manufactures and the others will prosper. We have a great water power, are away from other manufacturing centres, have an immense and fertile country to the north to draw supplies from, every facility for obtaining laborers and operatives, and there is a growing demand for such articles as we can manufacture here cheaper than it can be done elsewhere. We have only to stretch forth our hand to pluck the fruit that hangs ripe for the gathering.

Marcellus Emery, Esq., said that if one half the energy and capital Bangor had expended upon railroads could be laid out upon manufactures they could not fail of success. All that is necessary is to turn the energies of our citizens in the right direction. He thought a committee of business men should be appointed to take the subject into consideration and open correspondence with capitalists and manufacturers in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and other States, to lay before them our resources and invite them to come here.

On motion of O. H. Ingalls, Esq., the committee appointed to obtain speakers was instructed to nominate such a committee as Mr. Emery suggested, at the next meeting.

Dr. Ladd moved, and it was voted, that the same committee provide speakers for the next meeting, after which this meeting adjourned to Tuesday evening of next week.

Mr. Sumner denies the accuracy of the reported interview relative to Cincinnati, but does not state what he did say, nor "what he is going to say about it."

BANGOR MANUFACTORIES.

A LOOK AT SCHWARTZ' FOUNDRY, MACHINE SHOP AND STORE, AND WHAT WE SAW THEREIN.

In 1843, twenty-nine years ago, a young man came to this city with no capital but his brains and hands and an amount of energy and "pluck" possessed by few. Commencing business in a little store on Broad st., he has gradually worked his way up by his unaided efforts until at the present time he owns a foundry and machine shop, a saw manufactory and the largest hardware store in the city. To this gentleman, Michael Schwartz, Esq., our citizens need no introduction, but there are many who have never visited his manufacturing establishments, and a brief sketch of them may not prove unacceptable to our readers.

A day or two since a reporter for THE WHIG & COURIER visited the foundry and machine shop on Harlow street and we herewith give the result of his observations:—

THE MACHINE SHOP.

This department is on the first floor of the building on Harlow st., and occupies a room one hundred feet long by thirty-five in width. It contains eight lathes and two planers, employing eighteen hands whom we found busily engaged with their work. This machinery is driven by the patent Rotary Engine, which runs noiselessly and attracts the attention even of one unused to machinery by its nicety of finish, compactness, and the power with which it keeps in constant and regular motion the shafting by which the different machines are operated. This engine, (a description of which has already been published in these columns) promises to effect a complete revolution in the method of applying steam as a motive power, and the time is coming when the propietor expects to make the manufacture of these machines a specialty.

He now manufactures shingle and clapboard machines, and we were informed that his is the only place in the city where stave machine saws are attached to the cylinders. The rooms above the machine shop are occupied as a pattern manufactory, wood-shop and a store-room for machinery. We saw here a new thing in the shape of a shingle machine, simple in its construction, and one that will save a large amount of labor to the operator. This is not fully completed, being as yet in its infancy, but it will doubtless in time take the place of the older and more complicated machine. We also noticed in the store room a large number of the well known Nishwitz harrows.

THE FOUNDRY.

Proceeding to the basement we come into a large and well-conducted foundry, where castings for mill work and various kinds of machine work are made, as well as various kinds of iron ware. There is in this department a cupola furnace, which is capable of melting iron sufficient to make a pouring of two tons weight. There is a new furnace as large as any in the city which is soon to be set for use. Four tons of iron are used daily.

THE SAW FACTORY.

We next visited the saw factory, which is near the corner of Exchange and State sts., with an entrance on the latter. Here as in the other shop we found business pushed by active and skillful workmen; it is a busy place and contains much of interest to the observer. The manufacture of saws is a branch of business requiring the use of considerable machinery, and that of an excellent kind, and here we found it employed. It is driven by a horizontal fifteen-horse power engine, which our guide informed us would be removed and its place supplied by one of the rotary engines, adding parenthetically, "we believe in that machine."

The plates from which the saws are constructed are imported expressly for Mr. Schwartz, none other being used in his factory. They come from the English shops in a rough state and have a look far from that which they assume on passing through the different processes by which they are made serviceable. In the first place the plates are set under a drill for making and countersinking the shaft and collar holes; then they pass to the machine which gives them their first set of teeth. When this stage is passed the plates go to the smiths to be straightened. The metal is not heated for this purpose, the operation consisting simply in placing the plate upon the anvil and gently hammering it until it becomes a little crowning, the second heating in the furnace finishing the work. Now comes the most important part of the work, the tempering of the plate. For this purpose a large furnace is used with numerous shelves upon which the plates are placed and heated to the proper point when they are thrown into large vats of oil and left until completely cool. The metal comes from this bath as brittle as glass, so hard is the temper when oil is used, and must be again placed in the furnace and carefully heated, until the temper is drawn sufficiently to make them of use. The plates are next ground, an operation quite interesting to witness. The machine by which the grinding is done is a ponderous affair, and the bed on which the large mill saws are placed is so arranged as to be moved up and down, forward and back as the case may require, under a huge and swift revolving grindstone, which performs its work to perfection. So accurately are the surfaces ground that the severest tests fail to show any unevenness. The circular saws are ground upon a different machine, which begins at the center, working toward the outer edge. The patents for these machines are held by Mr. Schwartz. After grinding, the saws are placed on a rapidly turning arbor and polished by the use of emery powder. When polished the saws have a beautiful blue color peculiar to nicely tempered tools. The factory manufactures all kinds of saws, which are in good demand, finding a ready market all over the New England States, and even in far California.

The proprietor owns a stately granite block in West Market Square, dealing in hardware, building supplies, agricultural implements, etc., but we have already described this block to our readers in a former number.

ROCKLAND CUSTOM HOUSE. Mr. Hale has reported a bill, which was passed, making an appropriation for a public building for a Post Office and Custom House at Rockland, Maine. It names the sum of $50,000 for the purchase of the site and the erection of a building, and makes the sum of $25,000 available at once to commence the work as soon as the State of Maine shall transfer the title to the site to the United States.

The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church will begin its session at the Brooklyn Academy of Music on Wednesday. The delegates number 484, representing more than a million and a half of the followers of Wesley. At least eight new bishops are to be elected. The Book-Concern trouble is to be adjusted and it is now asserted that there will be another protracted contest over the majority and minority reports of the Committee.

NEWS FROM JAPAN. News has been received that the late Tycoon of Japan has been invited by the present reigning Emperor to come out of his late retirement and has received an honorable appointment under government, accompanied by a highly complimentary title. Among the Japanese now on the way to Washington is Rotori, the present Chief Minister of Finance of Japan. He was a leader of the rebel forces during the late revolution, but his political sins have been forgiven and honors conferred upon him by the present Emperor, against whom he fought with determined heroism. The father of Minister Mori has been placed at the head of an educational institution in Japan, and a lady connected with his family has become a teacher in one of the Japanese government schools.

THE GOVERNORSHIP OF FLORIDA. A dispatch from Tallahassee, Fla., states that Justices Westcott and Hart in Supreme Court on Monday, sustained Acting Governor Day, and advised Governor Reed that his impeachment is still pending before the Senate, which the Court says is the only tribunal to acquit him, and until he is convicted or discharged by that tribunal he is suspended from office. Chief Justice Randall dissented, holding that the Senate having adjourned sine die, the effect was to acquit Reed.

"Anybody-to-beat-Grant" is by no means a new battle cry. It was heard at Fort Donelson and Shiloh in 1862, at Vicksburg and Lookout Mountain in 1863, and in 1864-5 it was heard in accents of despair from the Rappahannock to the Appomattox. And again in 1868, when the Democrats were trying to elect Horatio Seymour and Frank P. Blair, they raised the same cry of "Anybody-to-beat-Grant!" All in vain, however; Grant was and is invincible. Of this fact the Cincinnati shouters of the refrain will learn in due time, to their utter discomfiture.

HASTY CONSUMPTION CURED BY FELLOWS' HYPOPHOSPHITES.

CARBONEAR, NEWFOUNDLAND, Jan. 3, 1871.—MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS.—Sir: I came to this country in May, 1869. I found a countryman of mine laboring under some affection of the lungs. I recommended your Syrup, tried at the Druggists in Harbor Grace, but they thought I was inventing the name at their expense. However, in April, 1870, Mr. Edgar Joyce rapidly wasted away with every symptom of quick consumption, so that he was unable to walk across the room, having no appetite, pains in the left side, nervous system unstrung, dry, hacking cough, &c. Fortunately I learned that your Syrup could be obtained at Mr. Dearin's, in St. John's, and immediately procured some, (showed one to W. H. Thompson, who ordered a supply from you at once.) This was Tuesday afternoon; at night he took the prescribed dose, and in the morning he described the very results notified on the wrapper. His appetite soon began to return, and a voracious one it was, too; the dry, hacking cough changed into loose but violent attacks, finally disappearing altogether; pains left his side, his hand assumed its usual steadiness, and before he finished ten bottles his health was quite restored, and to-day not a more healthy person is to be found on our streets; and it is the opinion of all, had he not been fortunate in getting your valuable Syrup of Hypophosphites, he would now be in his grave.

He happened to be in W. H. Thompson's the day your first shipment arrived, and took at once four bottles to the Labrador, which he was very anxious to do, but had not occasion to use them himself. No other medicine will he ever prescribe, recommend or give but yours.

I also recommended it to another consumptive, but have not heard from him since, as he lives in a distant part of the Island. Hoping this will give you some encouragement,

I remain, yours, &c.,
D. H. BURRIGE.

THE PEOPLE'S STAMP OF VALUE.—The Government endorsement which legalizes the sale of PLANTATION BITTERS, is not the only stamp affixed to that famous VEGETABLE TONIC. It bears, in addition to that official sanction, the STILL MORE VALUABLE STAMP OF PUBLIC APPROBATION. The inestimable voucher of its rare properties as a TONIC, CORRECTIVE and ALTERATIVE, is of much earlier date than the Government credential; for millions of people have pronounced it the GRAND SPECIFIC OF THE AGE long before Congress thought of taxing proprietary medicines. It is unnecessary to repeat, in detail, the properties of this wonderful Vegetable Invigorant. The best reference that can be offered to those who desire the full particulars of its virtues, is the GENERAL PUBLIC. Ask those who have tried it as a remedy for dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, intermittent fevers, nervous debility, rheumatism, sea sickness, low spirits, or loss of vital power, what Plantation Bitters has done for them, and be governed by the response they make to your inquiries.

WARREN'S COUGH BALSAM is a household necessity. Don't take a worthless article in it's place, when the great value of this is unquestioned. mar 26 d&w

THE DAISY'S MISTAKE.

BY REBECCA R. PIERCE.

There was a sweet Daisy down under the ground
Who had been hid a long she would fain look around,
She had snugly kept house till the winter was past—
And she longed for a bit of bright sunshine at last.

In her little soft bed, where she lay fast asleep,
She was wakened one day from her slumbers so deep,
Quite sure 'twas a robin above she heard sing
"Now," she said, "I will go for I know it is spring"

As she lifted her face so dainty and white
Up through the dark mould she trembled with fright
And she said to herself, "Ah me, I am afraid
By coming so soon, a mistake I have made"

In the range of her vision, she plainly could see
That the earth was as barren, and bare as could be—
Except here and there, a few patches of green
Not even the ghost of a flower could be seen

As she sat there alone just ready to cry
The bold spirit Wind came wandering by
"Little Daisy," said he, "in your pretty spring dress
You are sweet" and he gave her a saucy caress.)

The early spring sunshine strove kindly to warm
With the glow of his kisses her shivering form,
But the wind and the rain were less careful than he,
And they tossed her so rough'y 'twas painful to see

When her sisters appeared who were wiser than she,
They found her quite cross—and as well she might be!
She was weary and sick from the treatment she'd borne
And locked as she felt, quite faded and worn,

And she said to herself "This lesson is plain
'Twill teach me to never be hasty again!
For I m sure I shall ever remember the fate,
Of those, who like me are not willing to wait

IN SIR RUPERT'S ROOM

(Concluded)

II

The months passed so smoothly and uneventfully in my new home, that Christmas seemed to come upon me almost unawares. I was very happy in spite of that lonely heartedness, which is always I think, inseparable from a governess' life, and I loved my little pupil so dearly that even if I had a happy home to go to for that happy time I could hardly have borne to leave her. Hugh and Harry were at the Abbey now for their Christmas vacation, and they and Dolly and I had grown to be firm and merry friends together They were bold, daring boys, pleasant and good-natured, but I never wondered that the gentle, brilliant, beautiful child, my little one, should be the idol of the house—Day by day, she seemed to grow deeper and deeper into all our hearts—if she could possibly grow deeper into her mother's than she must have been from her birth I used to notice, even with a trembling fear, how that mother's calm face would brighten with a wonderful warm light at only the distant sound of her light step or gleeful voice, and how Sir Hugh's rapid impetuous tones would soften tenderly, and his quick eyes fill with a deep and quiet love at the touch of the tiny caressing fingers.

Great days there were at Crayden Abbey through that Christmas time, and at all the other great houses within reach of us, where children were to come home and to be entertained And at all these parties I was glad and proud to see how my little one, in her radiant childish beauty, reigned a fairy queen among other children. What her mother felt, seeing this, I could often guess—guess sometimes with a pang of bitter pain

Of course there were many nights that winter time when Sir Hugh and Lady Hurst went out alone, and the boys and Dolly and I had the big old house to ourselves. A merry, noisy, echoing place we made of it then, you may be sure

On this night that I am going to tell of, Sir Hugh and Lady Hurst were to dine at a distance—so far off that they started quite early in the afternoon Dolly stood in the hall, talking to her father and me, while we waited for Lady Hurst to come down stairs

"Take care of your little sister, my lads, said Sir Hugh, as the boys dashed in and pulled up suddenly, for they still stood in a little wholesome awe of their father and take care of Miss May, too and enjoy yourselves as much as you can, and don't expect us until you see us, for our coming home appears to me extremely uncertain. Here's mamma, another kiss, my beauty"

This was to Dolly, who sprang into his arms and laid her bright little head upon his shoulder

"Good bye, papa, I'll take good care of them all"

This was one of Dolly's favorite jokes, and we always laughed at it, just as if we had not heard it before

"That's right, dear Now I shall know they are safe," said Sir Hugh, his eyes full of a smile that was good to see, as he felt the warm little cheek against his own "Good bye, my treasure Good bye, my best little treasure"

Lady Hurst sailed down the broad oak stairs, holding up her white velvet skirt in one hand, and a rare and brilliant bouquet in the other Dolly had chosen the flowers from the maid and now came forward with it But when she held it up, dauntily and demurely, her mother dropped the frail flowers and she rich white dress, and kneeling down upon it on the marble pavement, to bring her face on a level with the child's, clasped her closely to her

"Dolly, darling, the little arms are too short yet, put them around mother's neck instead"

As she knelt so, the child, fast in her encbraces, the flowers crushed and unheeded at her feet, the father looking down upon them both with a curious glad pride and tenderness a strange, incomprehensible fear stole over me, a fear of leaving me alone with the care of their darling, and for a minute the responsibility seemed greater than I could bear Only for that minute did I feel it though for we all stood together to watch the carriage out of sight, we were the gayest little party possible

"Miss May, will you consent to—hide and seek?" asked Hugh, beginning at once to follow his father's advice, and en oy himself

"Yes, willingly, if Dolly and Harry like it."

"Oh, yes, we like it" they both cried at once, and I said we would begin at once as it would not be light very long, and then we could play firelight games in the school room.

They answered delightedly, and we raced each other along the passages while the echo of our rapid footsteps and our laughter went before

It was a grand house for hide and seek and I enjoyed the game as thoroughly as the children did.

"Just one more find—just one more, please Miss May," pleaded Dolly, when I, feeling the short winter afternoon was drawing in, proposed to change the game. "I have a plan, and I want just one more hide, please," she went on, her little feet dancing as they always did, when she was earnest and excited "I have a plan, just one more hide, please, Hugh, it's your turn to seek"

She watched Hugh out of sight with impatient eyes, then she whispered her plan

"Miss May, you and I will hide in Sir Rupert's room. Hugh will never, never guess it, because—because he knows I'm a little bit frightened of being there—at least, that I used to be. So he will never look there, and will never find us—never, and our side will win Would you mind, though?"

I mind, if she did not

"Then come now, quick. Harry will look us in, won't you Harry? and hang the key up again where it is now, then hide yourself somewhere, as far away as possible O, what a good thought it is! Hugh never will guess."

The light feet ran down the gloomy, darkened corridor, I followed closely, for Dolly had fast hold of my dress all the time. We went gaily together into the great high room, was being heedlessly together over closed floor and on the soft carpet. When Harry took down the key, and I saw how large and massive it was, an old little shudder stole over me, but before I could speak, he had opened the door, and Dolly, half curiously, half timidly, stepped in, still holding me so that I could not but follow immediately Harry hung the key upon its hook again, and then ran away

Dolly still held me in the darkness, and I was very glad I felt almost afraid of her passing from my touch, as well as from my sight. Presently we grew accustomed to the blackness, and Dolly even whispered, laughing, softly, that it would be greater fun still, if we could slide the panneled back so that neither Hugh nor Harry could find us. For my own part, I felt relieved that we could not; and I said I doubted Hugh would hardly be able to and as it was.

"I don't really think he will," cried Dolly in her gleeful voice. "I don't seem a bit afraid, now he's gone"

"No, but I want to feel what the place is like. Let me go a moment, pet"

But when I moved my hands among the walls, I felt nothing but flocked velvet, until it came against the pile of old pictures propped there. Dolly's groping fingers had just seized mine again, when we could hear the noisy opening of the door at the other end of the long outer room, and we guessed rightly that Harry was found, and that Hugh had a good idea of our hiding place.

"Stop, stop a moment!" exclaimed Dolly in an excited whisper, "I'll go behind the big pictures. I won't mind the dirt."

Before I had time to stop her or help her, she was I suppose, safely hidden under the boards and canvass, for her voice had a half muffled sound when she told me she was all right now"

At that moment I heard the key put into the lock, and through the open doorway came a little light at last.

"Miss May, I declare!" shouted Hugh pulling me triumphantly from the narrow room "Now, where is Dolly?" Not far off, I'll be bound"

He was just going back to seek Dolly, when Harry guessing at her stratagem, and pleased to delay his brother's triumph, pulled him back turned the key upon his sister, and with it in his hand, ran off shouting that our side was not beaten yet

This of course, assured Hugh that Dolly was hidden in the closet, and he turned and followed crying that this was unfair, as it certainly was But Harry had a good start, and was the best runner, too

"Dolly, my darling," I cried wishing with all my heart that I was locked in the darkness with her, one of us to the door and talk to me You will not mind being by yourself a very little time Hugh is gone for the key he will be back in a few minutes"

I heard a movement of the boards, and I waited

"Come close to me, with only the door between us Dolly"

"I cannot," answered a distant, muffled voice, "the things have slipped, and I cannot get out now till you come and move them I don't mind Miss May, dear I'm not afraid—don't you mind"

I ran to the other door and called and listened, but I heard no sign of the boys' return

"Do you hear them coming now?" question I Dolly's distant voice, when I had regained my old position.

"Not yet dear, but they must come in a few minutes

And again I ran and shouted, but the dismal corridor only echoed my own frightened tones and gave me back no answer

"Dolly dear," I cried again, through the key hole, only wanting to hear her speak

"Dolly, I am here."

Then the little weak voice answered me

"Miss May dear, I feel so strange, just as if I couldn't breathe And I hear odd sounds, do you"

"No, darling, nothing Perhaps you hear the boys"

"—no Will they come soon?"

I think so, pet, I am going to hasten them now I shall only be a minute or two away"

"Don't go yet," the child pleaded wait a little minute Hugh is sure to come It is so dark"

And I put my mouth to the key hole, and spoke to my little one again

"Do you hear me, darling?"

"Yes"

Then Dolly, dear, if I sing your favorite hymn, will you sing it with me? We should be more companionable so, and it would do us good and cheer us"

She began the hymn at once, without waiting to answer me, and I joined her, singing as loudly as I could, glad that my plan had succeeded so well But presently I missed the little sunshered voice and I stopped, calling out to ask why it was

"I can't Miss May"—the answer seemed more faint and distant now, though my ear was at the key hole, "I feel as if I could to nothing Don't go."

"I must, my darling," I cried in untold fear, "I must go for Harry"

I fled along the passages, calling at every step, stopping at every door and window, with the same cry, "Hugh! Harry! boys"

At last, through one of the staircase windows, I saw them, and I darted from the house and followed I was just in sight of them, when I saw Hugh seize Larry, who laughingly held the keys up at arm's length out of his brother's reach As Hugh sprang to grasp it, Harry flung it from him heedlessly—flung it, in one moment, over the stone wall of the kitchen garden, but none but myself could see that it fell into the old unused well, I saw the key drop, though I did not hear it, and I looked for one hopeless moment down the shaft, while Harry's cry was half laughter, and Hugh's angry exclamation pierced me where I stood Then I ran wildly back to the house, hearing nothing and seeing nothing by the way I sped on through one of the servant's entrances, shouting as I ran, to tell them to send men to Sir Rupert's room with tools to break the door I knew they heard and understood me, though I never stopped to say it, and died on breathlessly along the corridor, crying now in my passion ate eager fear, that I was coming to rescue my darling But this I knew, I cried below my breath, in the death like muffled fear which was clinging round my heart.

"Dear I am coming, my pet," I whispered, bending to the key hole, "you shall be let out in a moment now"

But no answer came from my imprisoned child

"Speak to me, Dolly dear," I said, my voice shrill and tremulous, "just one word"

All and I listened with beating heart for the distant voice. But no answer, not even a faint faint word, came back to me.

"I am so lonely here without you, pet."

No answer still

Then I beat at the door wildly, crying—literally gasping—for help I heard footsteps hurrying up the distant stairs, and I called to the servants to make haste, breaking off in that cry to plead again with my little one for just one word

"Dolly darling! Dolly! Dolly, answer me one word, dearest"

The steps came on through the passage and into the room, and a crowd of curious and crouth ed faces gathered round me Some one took my hands from the door, and I started back, uttering brokenly my thanks and gratitude

The heavy blow upon the door broke it a little but did not open it My glad exultant cry pierced the thick panels

Now we are coming, Dolly dear, now we are coming, and while they tried a second time in vain, I wrung my hands, still crying with all my useless strength "Now, darling! now you are to come to me."

The door burst open then I felt suddenly blinded and bewildered by looking into the darkness beyond, and I crept back a little way The men clustered into the narrow closet. Hugh and Harry, foremost of them all were groping in the dark as they called their little sister's name.

With a new and sudden strength I pushed the crowding forms aside, took the heavy pictures easily in my shaking hands, and moved them away as if they had been of feather's weight And then, even in the deep gloom I could see her I often see her so, even now in my troubled dreams

With the little white figure in my arms, the long bright hair hanging against me—one tangled, clotted mass touching my hand with a touch that wrung my heart with a sharp and shuddering agony—I came out from the darkness

I think they all drew back from me as I bore her through them, but the crowd of horror stricken faces followed me a rar off as I uttered from the gloomy rooms with my darling

My darling! Ah, it was too hard just yet to think that this little bleeding form, in its soiled and stained white dress, was not my little one, but that she lived already another life than ours, far, far away from us all, in a world yet that never should be stained nor spotted more

I laid her on her own little bed in the soft ened lamplight, I washed the little white shoulder that had been so cruelly bitten I washed and brushed the soft rippling hair and then I sat beside her, and my eyes were aching, aching as they were fixed upon the little white, still face.

I knew not who came or went, I knew not if any one stayed with me I knew not how many hours I sat so, but at last, late—very late—in the slow winter night, whose chill I could feel, I knew that the door had opened for the mother to come in I heard each footstep as it fell upon my own heart, while she came up to the side of the little bed opposite me.

I slowly lifted my heavy eyes, in which a light only like despair seemed to have died forever, from my little one's face to the one that bent above it—a face I could hardly have recognized My lips moved, I was trying to tell the mother how I killed her child, but no sound came. I fancied I was speaking fast and loud, but though the words were framed by my tight stiff lips, no sound followed Looking across the bed, the mother strangely, coldly signed to some one to take me away. They raised me, and led me toward the door, while the figures all melted slowly and misily from around me, leaving nothing distinct but this wild, cold look with which I had been cast from my darling's side. My face tortured my head swam. I pushed I struggled not let them take me away I knew I was dying too, and wanted to die there side the child whom I had killed in that instant Sir Hugh's face with its terror has never left me, with its cold hard agonized [illegible]
